5.1.3 Guidance for competitive examinations

Competition is a vital part of life in the professional world because examinations are needed for government jobs, promotions, and admissions. Along with their normal tests and exams, pharmacists must set aside three hours a week to prepare objectively for the GPAT program. Students who want to do well on national entrance examinations need to be in a safe and supportive environment. Our institution regularly gives students books, computers, and academic advice to help them get ready for the GPAT. Workshops on job counselling are held to help students get even more ready for examinations. College students can get help from the Facilitation Centre when they need to scan and share examination documents.

Available resources provided by the Institute to carry out this task

1. The facility includes an E-library.
2. Our seminar space can accommodate up to 100 students and is equipped with a projector facility.
3. Final year students are given access to a library of competitive books to help them prepare For GPAT/ MBA/ MPSC exams,.
4. Additionally, the institute offers guest lectures by institute graduates to aid with GPAT Preparation and competitive exams.

Career Counselling:

After graduation, it was revealed that many students were experiencing a problem about their employment possibilities. During this transitional moment, students were striving to find a suitable career in which they could employ their talents. In order avoid this situation and obtain a successful career counselling process, it is necessary to give proper direction, excellent moral support, and actively seek solutions for the obstacles experienced at different stages. The training and placement part of the institute also holds seminars to give career assistance and match the requirements of the Pharmaceutical industries.

Remedial Coaching:

The institution strives to establish specific abilities of the students that may help to their academic and professional success. In this setting mentorship of students is incredibly vital. We have embraced the value of mentoring and the faculty members attempt to informally coach the students. Teacher's assist students understand undergraduate programming requirements and clarify distinct sections of curriculum. They consistently inspire students to come forward with their ideas at all stages of growth. Students are driven to enhance their abilities. Faculty members are personally help in accomplishing the academic and professional goals via delivering guidance, experience and expertise.

Students come from an increasingly diversified background, so teachers directly interact and seek to assist them to adjust to changes in a graceful manner. Students begin to interact with the teacher. Mentoring increases students' progress in educational skills.

They can manage difficult or demanding situation as well. It also decreases stress level and enhances confidence of the students. As we have students from various categories of society and with the experience of dealing with the students our college professors have designed remedial coaching for children. A Remedial coaching is arranged. The committee is charged for identifying areas where remedial coaching is essential and implementing appropriate coaching sessions for students to help them overcome the hurdles experienced by them. Seminar and workshops are organized by the institute as a remedial coaching. A speaker from academia, business and research makes a lecture on varied issues so that as elements of curriculum is covered.
